Senate Will Vote On Congress Pay Boost Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21 (P)—The Senate late today agreed to vote Wednesday on a proposed 50 per cent pay hike for members of Congress. Sen. Morse (D-Ore) thereupon cut short a speech he had been making against the measure.

Morse took the floor early in the afternoon for what had all the earmarks of a marathon speech. He threatened to talk indefinitely to stall a vote before Wednesday. Debate To Be Limited

Democratic and Republican leaders, who support the pay increase measure, huddled and finally came up with an agreement to start voting on the bill Wednesday, with a 30-minute debate limit on amendments and one hour on final passage, to be divided equally between those for and against the

The agreement, which required unanimous consent of all senators present, was read and quickly adopted. Then the Senate adjourned for the day.

Morse had argued that the Senate had no right to ram through a pay increase for itself without Police Patrols debate and without time for the country to realize what was going

Committee Pushes Bill Providing $20 Cut For Everybody

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21 (A-The House Ways and Means Committee, over the strong protests of Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, voted in favor of a $20 income tax cut for everybody

Humphrey accused Democratic members of the committee of working "completely contrary to the public interest" in pushing the bill to give each taxpayer a $20 reduction on income earned after next Jan. 1, plus $20 for each dependent, including his spouse. But the committee was reported to have voted 15-10 for the cut. Democratic leaders planned to send the bill to the House floor for debate on Thursday. Excise Cut Delay Approved

At its closed-door session, the committee also was reported to have approved by topheavy margins President Eisenhower's request to postpone for one year a reduction of about three billion dollars in corporate income and excise taxes. wait until tomorrow to take final action on a composite bill incorporating all the provisions. Rep. Harrison (D-Va) was reported to have been the only Democrat on the committee voting against the $20 tax slice. Rep. Baker (R-Tenn) was the only Republican voting "yes,". The committee is made up of 15 Democrats and 10 Republicans.

There are some who question Washington's greatness as a general. He lost many battles-Brandywine, Germantown, Long Island. But he was never defeated in spirit. He never gave up, even when all seemed lost, and his greatest victories were his triumphs of will and courage and character.

They were won at Valley Forge over the justified grumbling of his men, over harsh public criticism, over the captious meddling of a Congress too weak to help him. George Washington's profound religious attitude appears in this Circular to the States, which ends on this

And the talk Such are the only practical aims about re-invading the mainland is for Formosa today. To these aims, dishonest, or moonstruck, or both at once.

Chiang Re-Leashed

In the first place, as Sen. Knowland must know, Chiang Kai-shek has now been carefully re-leashed, The secret protocol of the Formosa treaty absolutely forbids any Chinese Nationalist attack on the mainland without American consent. American consent will certainly not be granted unless there is a general war.

In the second place, the Nationalists would not be able to attack the mainiand without the most massive outside help, even if Chiang Kai-shek were unleashed all over again. Despite the inflow of American arms in fact, the Chinese Nationalists are steadily growing weaker in relation to the

The Peking government today has something like 250 divisions of all kinds, and it is strong and growing stronger in the air. Wishing Won't Make It So But the error of Clement Attlee, Sen. Morse and even President Eisenhower is to believe that a cease-fire can be obtained by wishing for it. It should not be necessa ary to answer the Attlee-Morse theory, that the way to do business with Communists is to be nice to them-to show goodwill by giving them the offshore island as a gracious present.

Unfortunately the theory of the President and his policy makers does not seem to be much more workable than the Attlee-Morse theory. Judging by the Communists' demeanor, there is almost no hope of getting a cease-fire on the present system, by mumbling that we just may fight for the offshore islands if we happen to feel like

There will be more hope of a cease-fire if we say that unless we get one, we are ready and willing to fight for the offshore islands, period. But even then, alas, the odds will only be even. The ugly truth is that a cease-fire may well be unattainable until the conventional moment, which is after there has been some firing.

In Memoriam

Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind:
They are cherished in the hearts of Those they leave behind.

Loving and kind in all his ways,

Upright and just to the end of his Sincere and true in heart and mind, Beautiful memories that he left behind. Sadly missed by his Mother, Brothers, Sisters & Shirley

Senate Will Vote On Congress Pay Boost Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21 (A)—The Senate late today agreed to vote Wednesday on a proposed 50 per cent pay hike for members of Congress. Sen. Morse (D-Ore) thereupon cut short a speech he had been making against the measure. Morse took the floor early in the afternoon for what had all the earmarks of a marathon speech. He threatened to talk indefinitely to stall a vote before Wednesday. Debate To Be Limited

Democratic and Republican leaders, who support the pay increase measure, huddled and finally came up with an agreement to start voting on the bill Wednesday, with a 30-minute debate limit on amendments and one hour on final passage, to be divided equally between those for and against the

America Spreads o'Fire Of Liberty'

"America has furnished to the world the character of Washington." Daniel Webster said. "And if our American institutions had done nothing else, that alone would have entitled them to the respect of mankind.

The character and the courage of Washington stand out in bolder relief with the passing of the years. These attributes, above all others, offer the explanation of his greatness and of his ability to overcome crises, both of war and of peace, and to establish a nation which today remains faithful to "The preservation of the sacred fire of liberty, and the destiny of the republican model of government," he said in his first inaugural address, "are justly considered as deeply, perhaps as finally staked, on the experiment entrusted to the hands of the American people.'

That experiment has been proved by the challenges of time to be in safe hands. The nation which may be considered as the creature of Washington's greatness of character and of soul is today playing, as it always has played, a major part in preserving the sacred fire of liberty in America and throughout

There are some who question Washington's greatness as a general. He lost many battles-Brandywine, Germantown, Long Island. But he was never defeated in spirit. He never gave up, even when all seemed lost, and his greatest victories were his triumphs of will and courage and character.

They were won at Valley Forge over the justified grumbling of his men, over harsh public criticism, over the captious meddling of a Congress too weak to help him. They were won over traitors and deserters, over conspiracies among his own officers. They were won over the weakling desire to quit and settle for peace at any price.

From the winning of a war for freedom, Washington proceeded to the establishment of a new nation based upon nothing more substantial than a dream - the dream of brave men that the great intangible of the democratic ideal could be given substance and reality and made enduring. In this experiment, too, the character and the greatness of soul of Washington triumphed over the ambitions, the jealousies and the falseness of many of those about him, over the financial chaos in which the war's end found the colonies and over foreign intrigues.

His spirit must find pride in the knowledge that, as new perils appear, "the sacred fire of liberty" is in the strong hands of another generation of Americans.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

George Washington

The men who formed this nation were extraordinarily well-read, experienced and wise. It is a curiosity that during and after a revolution, so much talent should have been joined in such bodies as the committee that prepared the Declaration of Independence or the assembly that wrote the Constitution of the United States. These men chose George Washington of Virginia, first as their military leader and then as President of the United States.

Washington was inevitably a nationalist because that is what he was fighting for-the establishment of an independent nation. Throughout the military campaign he complained that the best talents in the country were devoting themselves to local affairs instead

In his great speech to the officers in Newburgh, N. Y., who were at the point of mutiny because they were so long unpaid and unprovided for, he said:

. . And let me conjure you, in the name of our common country, as you value your own sacred honor, as you respect the rights of humanity, and as you regard the military and national character of America, to express your utmost horror and detestation of the man who wishes, under any specious pretences, to overturn the liberties of our country, and who wickedly attempts to open the flood gates of civil discord, and deluge our rising empire in

In his Circular to the States of June 8, 1783, the Revolutionary War having been won, Washington set forth four fundamentals for the establishment of a successful

"There are four things, which I humbly conceive, are essential to the well being. I may even venture to say, to the existence of the United States as an independent

"1st. An indissoluble union of the states under one federal head.

"2dly. A sacred regard to public justice. "3dly. The adoption of a proper peace establish-

"4thly. The prevalence of that pacific and friendly disposition, among the people of the United States, which will induce them to forget their local prejudices and policies, to make those mutual concessions which are requisite to the general prosperity, and in some instances, to sacrifice their individual advantages to the interest of the community." Explaining Point One, he said:

. . altho' it may not be necessary or proper for me in this place to enter into a particular disquisition of the principles of the union, and to take up the great question which has been frequently agitated, whether it be expedient and requisite for the states to delegate a larger proportion of power to Congress, or not, yet it will be a part of my duty, and that of every true patriot, to assert without reserve, and to insist upon the following positions, that unless the states will suffer Congress to exercise those prerogatives, they are undoubtedly invested with by the Constitution, every thing must very rapidly tend to anarchy and confusion .

George Washington's profound religious attitude appears in this Circular to the States, which ends on this

"I now make it my earnest prayer, that God would have you, and the state over which you preside, in His holy protection, that He would incline the hearts of the citizens to cultivate a spirit of subordination and obedience to government, to entertain a brotherly affection and love for one another, for their fellow citizens of the United States at large, and particularly for their brethren who have served in the field, and finally, that He would most graciously be pleased to dispose us all, to do justice, to love mercy, and to demean ourselves with that charity, humility and pacific temper of mind, which were the characteristicks of the Divine Author of our blessed religion. and without an humble imitation of whose example in these things, we can never hope to be a happy nation."

Friend Of Phones

Here's what the American public should watch for if the Senate confirms George McConnaughey to be chairman of the Federal Communications Commission: a general hike in phone rates.

Here is the backstage reason for this prediction

For a long time the American Telephone and Telegraph Company has been trying to get the FCC to change its base for fixing phone rates. In the past the FCC has held rates should be based upon the original cost of the phone company's equipment. But the phone company wants rates based on the replaceguing, that costs have gone up of equipment. since the equipment was first pur-

Dangerous Route To School

These four boys are seen walking along the Georges Creek Boulevard enroute to school at Valley High near Lonaconing. Absence of sidewalks, shoulders, or curbs on the roadway makes it necessary for the several hundred youngsters to walk in the traffic lanes. A meeting of interested citizens and organizations has been called for Wednesday night to discuss and seek a solution to the problem. The meeting will be held tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in the Lonaconing VFW home.

South should have done just as well from his side, but West's low spade opening gave him a fine chance to slip, and South seized this opportunity. He played low from dummy-and from that moment on he was in trouble. East took the trick, and, reading the spade situation, shifted to the club queen. Declarer held up dummy's ace, but the defenders persisted, and when the vital diamond finesse lost, South was help-

South was very foolish at Trick 1 when he failed to put up the spade ace. The crux of this hand was to establish the diamonds as quickly as possible, and if the diamond finesse lost, it would lose to West. That defender, after winning with the diamond king, could not make a damaging return. South would still have protection in spades, in his Q-10, and would have plenty of tricks for the contract even if he never got
